John Morrissey.

So much has been said about this noted individual that we had concluded to let his name drop for a while, or at least until it should appear by the record of his course in Congress; but the following, from a correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer, explains so much in relation to his sudden acquirement of wealth that we insert it, and thus dispose of him for the present.

New York, December 29th.—Last night, while seated in the Fifth Avenue Hotel, a gentleman approached me and said he desired to introduce to me John Morrissey. I invited him to be seated, and conversed with him for a considerable length of time upon various questions, and found him to be a remarkably courteous and polite gentleman, well informed; and, while he shows by his conversation that he lacks the advantages of an early education, he is in many respects a remarkable man. His strong points lie in his manly candor and strong common sense. He conversed about himself with unusual frankness, and answered courteously all questions that were propounded to him by the gentlemen present. He said he had no idea of becoming a candidate for Congress when the newspapers first announced his name, but that so much had been said against him by certain newspapers that he concluded to become a candidate and show them that, notwithstanding their opposition, he could be nominated and elected.

After his nomination many of his friends came to him and advised him to close up his gambling houses, and abandon all business of that character. He replied "that if elected he must be taken as he was." He had made up his mind that, in case he was successful, he would abandon the business; but he kept his own counsel. "Now," said he, "I am a member of the Fortieth Congress, and after the 1st of January, 1867, I shall cease to be connected in any manner with gambling, no matter whether in stocks, gold, or with cards." This he considered a duty he owed to his family, his constituents and society.

HIS CONNECTION WITH COMMODORE VANDERBILT.

Upon being asked by a gentleman as to how he came into the good graces of Vanderbilt, he replied that in the Spring of 1862 he had been operating but a short time in Wall street, and was caught in one of Vanderbilt's operations (Harlem) by which he lost $80,000. He had but $60,000, which he paid, and gave his notes to Vanderbilt's broker for the remaining $20,000. This was in the Spring of the year, just as he was getting ready to leave for Saratoga. He had but $600, all told, and that was not sufficient to commence business (gambling) there. He knew Vanderbilt but slightly, and one morning he called at Vanderbilt's stables, and found that gentleman just going out to ride. Vanderbilt spoke to him and said: "John, they tell me you lost heavily in Harlem. How much did you lose?" Morrissey replied: "About $80,000—all I have in the world. I am now going to Saratoga, and merely want to say I have not come here to cry or make a poor face; I only wish, when you have something good, that you will allow me to come in."

Vanderbilt said, "Well, come and see me frequently. I want to talk with you. But how will you go to Saratoga without means?"

Morrissey—"I will borrow some up country."

"Oh! never mind that. Come and see me. I will loan you $20,000," said Vanderbilt, and then drove off.

He was as good as his word, and loaned Morrissey the money, refusing to take even a note, merely remarking, "If your word is not good, your note is certainly no account."

FACTS ABOUT THE PRESENTATION OF THE HORSE.

After Vanderbilt's arrival at Saritoga Morrissey found him upon several occasions at his stable looking at a remarkably fine horse he owned, and for which he had several times offered $12,500. One morning Vanderbilt asked him what he would take for him. He replied that "he was not for sale; but if he would accept him, he was welcome to the horse as a present." "Had I sold the horse to Vanderbilt for a round sum, he would at once have concluded that I had no gratitude, and merely desired his acquaintance for selfish purposes," added Morrissey. This was the commencement of their acquaintance, which is continued up to this time. During the winter of 1862-3 they formed the memorable corner in Harlem which fairly shook the foundations of Wall street, and overwhelmed many of its most daring operators with financial ruin. This operation, says Morrissey, was not originally intended as a money-making operation, but it was done to punish a number of stock and railroad men who had attempted to depreciate the Harlem road (which is principally owned by Vanderbilt) and run down its stock, they at the same time being recipients of favors from Vanderbilt, who learned that they were "short of Harlem" for large amounts. Vanderbilt at one time contemplated putting the stock up to $1,000 per share, which he had the power to do, and thus break every man who was "short of it," but that would yield no profit, and Morrissey finally persuaded him not to do so, but to allow it to remain at a figure where they could collect the differences.

Vanderbilt never forgives any person who tries to depreciate his property, and whenever he makes up his mind to punish an operator he will do it severely. There is no let up about him after he once commences.

ABOUT HIMSELF.

Morrissey seems to understand and appreciate the position in which he is now placed. He was a poor, uneducated boy when he came here, and fell in with firemen, local politicians and gamblers. He had done the best he could, and said he had always been fair between man and man. He had been a prize fighter and a gambler, but he could not help that now. He would make no promises for the future, but did not intend that his friends should have any cause to regret his future conduct and course of life.

I do not write this as a defence of John Morrissey, as I care nothing for him, good or bad, but merely to gratify a curiosity that people generally have to know something of public men.

BALL, the artist, has finished his marble statue of Forrest, in his muscular role of Coriolanus, and will shortly ship to Boston a new and beautiful "Eve."

Salt Lake City, November 5, 1866.

The Fulfillment of Prophecy.

Most people labor under the impression that the late rebellion was inaugurated in the interests of slavery and to perpetuate the political rule of Southern aristocrats, who governed the country up to 1861, and were not then willing to give up the offices. From one end of the loyal States to the other, the names of Jeff. Davis and his co-conspirators are anathematized for having brought the woes of civil strife upon our fair land. They even talk of bringing the chief of the attempted confederacy to trial for treason and other crimes. But all this, it appears, is a mistake, a wonderful delusion. Slavery and slave-holders have had very little to do with the matter, except to be the instruments of carrying out a predicted and inevitable fate. The real reason of the civil war was that a number of years ago a mob of lawless men persecuted the Mormons, and the Government of the United States didn't hang two or three Governors, or imprison a score or so of Judges. For the manifold and grievous sins of the nation towards the disciples of Joseph Smith, an angry Providence visited on the nation the rebellion. Not only this, but this very punishment was foretold long years ago, and when it came every "loyal Mormon" recognized it as the smiting of the people by the Almighty, and hence the very little disposition they evinced to stay it, even by their prayers or wishes.

We gather this interesting and o'er true information from a long leading editorial in the last number of the Deseret News. The opening paragraph of the article reads as follows:

"Over thirty-three years ago the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints received a commandment from the Lord to seek redress at the hands of the legally constituted authorities, for the wrongs which they had suffered. They were then few in number, compared with the present time. But the same spirit of persecution which afterwards drove them mercilessly from the eastern States to this wild region of country, had even then made them suffer bitterly by mob violence. To recount the persecutions which they endured, would be to relate the most barbarous and unprecedented acts ever perpetrated in any country claiming to be civilized."

Then follows a long account of the trials, persecutions and outrages which the Saints suffered at the hands of their opponents. This is a theme with which we are becoming tolerably familiar. Not a Sabbath passes but the same story is rehearsed in Tabernacle sermons, hardly one of which but is replete with reference to these things. They roll it under their tongues as a sweet morsel, and are determined that their followers shall not cease to remember one jot or one tittle of the persecutions, real or imaginary, endured. The purpose of all this is too apparent to require comment. After reciting these things and the appeals made by Joe Smith to Judges, Governors and Presidents for redress, the News gives us the revelation after this style:

"The Lord, in the revelation referred to, declared what would be the result if these repeated appeals were unheeded, and if the importunings of His persecuted Saints did not obtain redress for them:—'And if the President heed them not, then will the Lord arise and come forth out of His hiding place, and in His fury vex the nation, and in His hot displeasure, and in His fierce anger, in His time, will cut off those wicked, unfaithful and unjust stewards, and appoint them their portion among hypocrites and unbelievers.' (Doc. & Cov., page 283, 3d European ed.)"

And so, in fulfillment of this prophecy and revelation, the nation was sorely vexed by the great rebellion, for, continues this veracious chronicler of the Church organ,

"The dark and bloody wave which so lately rolled over the nation, was not only a consequence of the rejection of the revelations of the Almighty to its inhabitants, but was a natural and inevitable result of the manner in which the Saints were treated, in being cruelly wronged, and redress refused when importuned for."

After this, it is to be hoped that Jeff. Davis will be released, Surratt turned loose, and a general amnesty proclaimed by President Johnson.

During the dark days of the rebellion, when loyal hearts were sad over defeats, which came thick and fast upon the Union cause, it grated on the ear to hear the Mormon leaders in their Sabbath harangues, pray that the war might still go on, and predict that it would continue until both North and South would have no more men left, and that the nation would be rent in twain. For printing and commenting on these expressions and predictions, the VEDETTE was freely denounced as slandering a loyal people. But now the News comes bravely up to the work and says:

"One great reason why the cry of disloyalty has been raised against us, as a people, has been because we have honestly told the nation of the troubles and distress which were coming upon it. In doing this, we but declared what the Almighty had revealed."

It so often happens that the wish is the parent of the thought, that inexperienced mortals believed that when the Bishops and Elders were denouncing the Union cause, and cheering on the rebels, amid hearty amens, they but expressed their darling hopes. But that was all a mistake, they merely recognized the chastisement of Providence on the nation for abusing the Saints a quarter of a century ago, and felt how important it would be on their part to try, even by their prayers and Tabernacle harangues, to resist the will of the Almighty.

The editorial referred to, concludes with a timely warning to Congressmen and men of that ilk at Washington, to go very slow in their interference in Utah affairs, if they would keep the nation out of difficulty. The prophecy is not yet entirely fulfilled. There are one or two vials of wrath predicted, which haven't yet been opened, and perhaps we can keep them corked up, if the Chief Priests and Scribes are permitted to take as many wives as they wish. We don't like to be impertinent, but we should like our cotemporary to print Joe Smith's prophecy in full. It was often referred to during the war, but our recollection is that there has been some very great mistake in the fulfillment of it. Let us have the whole of the previous documents and then we can compare notes.

Washington, February 5.

The ice on the Potomac broke up this morning, carrying everything before it. The Long Bridge and the newly constructed railroad bridge to the Virginia shore were swept away. All railroad communication south is suspended.

A Tribune special says the Vienna mission will probably be tendered to King, who is now at Rome. Cowan cannot be confirmed.

A Times special says Stevens denies being in the conspiracy to impeach General Grant. Stevens and General Butler both deny having anything to do with Ashley's impeachment resolutions.

Washington, February 5.

Senate—On motion of Morrill, the Secretary of War was asked if General Sherman issued any orders for the protection of trains crossing the plains; if so, of what nature.

The Bankrupt bill was taken up, and on motion of Henderson the minimum of indebtedness for which voluntary bankruptcy may by instituted, was fixed at $10,000, instead of $3,000 as in the House bill. The bill was then taken out by the Committee of the Whole, and reported to the Senate on motion of Sumner. The provisions are that no discharge to a debtor, whose assets do not pay 50 per cent. within a year from the passage of this Act, shall be granted unless with the written consent of a majority of his creditors. After some discussion a vote on the bill was taken—yeas, 20; nays, 22. So the bill was lost.

Boston, February 5.

Several buildings at Marblehead, among them the extensive shoe factory of J. Harris, were destroyed by fire last night. Loss $150,000.

New York, February 5.

The Post learns from Washington that there is not the slightest prospect of the success of impeachment.

The Greek Consul, of this city, received the following dispatch to-day:

"Liverpool, February 4.

"The Hellonic community of Liverpool request you to tender their grateful thanks to the Boston and New York Committees and the American people for their sympathy in behalf of the destitute families of Cretans fighting for liberty."

New Orleans, February 4.

The House Committee reported a bill, which passed, calling for a State Convention to alter and amend the State Constitution. It provides that an election be held on the second Monday in April. If the people decide in favor of the convention, it shall assemble on the first Monday in May. It is expected that if the Governor should veto the bill it will be passed over his head.

Washington, February 5.

The Senate Finance Committee took this morning a favorable action on the bill converting the interest bearing notes into bonds, to be held as a reserve by the banks, as was predicted some time since.

New York, February 5.

Between 12 and 1 o'clock the office of Leonard W. Jerome, in Wall street, was entered by burglars and robbed of $100,000 in 5-20 United States bonds.

Washington, February 5.

Sanford Conover was arraigned before the criminal court to-day on the charge of perjury in his evidence before the Judiciary Committee in the matter of Jeff. Davis's complicity in the plot for the assassination of Lincoln.

The Senate Finance Committee adopted a bill to-day, proposed by the leading bankers of the country, with the indorsement of the Secretary of the Treasury, for funding compound interest notes.

Much damage is reported in Georgetown by the breaking up of the ice. Wharves were overflowed, and the ice pressing against and under them lifted them from their foundations. For miles the Potomac has the appearance of immense plowed fields. Both Long Bridge and the newly constructed railroad bridge to the Virginia shore are seriously damaged, large sections having been swept away.

New York, February 5.

The Sheppard, from San Francisco, with a cargo of wheat, arrived to-day.

New Orleans, February 5.

By official information from Fort McIntosh it is reported that twelve or fifteen bandits are roaming around the country between Neuses River and San Antonio. They have killed eight persons and pillaged several houses. Major Hagin with a small party started in pursuit and succeeded in killing three and capturing ten horses, with a loss of only one man.

Topeka, February 5.

The Kansas Senate has passed a concurrent resolution, by a unanimous vote, to raise a committee to investigate charges of bribery made in connection with the recent Senatorial election.

The House appointed a committee to inquire into the recent Indian massacres, and report what legislation, if any, is needed to prevent such atrocities.

New York, February 5.

The Times' Montreal special says the London specials to the Government organs here, announce that the Confederation bill will pass Parliament, without opposition, before the close of January. Canada is the name recommended for the new nation by the Canadian delegates, but the ultimate choice rests with her Majesty.

The Times' Washington special says that the Southerners there who expect their reconstruction plan will be acceptable to Congress, are much mistaken, for there is an inconsiderable number who will accept any modification of the Constitutional Amendment. The plan will, however, be submitted to the Reconstruction Committee to-day.

A letter sent by the Governors to the Southern Legislatures, with their plans, while it recommends the adoption of the new proposition as decidedly non-committal, says their acceptance of it would virtually effect a compromise between the President and Congress, which they consider desirable. It is known that the President telegraphed, as a private citizen, to Southern Legislatures, urging on them the adoption of this proposition. So far as heard from, the Southern press are against the proposition.

The Committee of Ways and Means, in accordance with the instructions of the House, will soon report a bill to prevent the reduction of legal tenders, but will at the same time report a contrary bill, as expressing their own views, as a compromise, so that provision may be made against the results feared from the sudden withdrawal of compound interest notes.

It is not true, as has been stated, that the President has said he would veto the Tariff bill if it passed the House.

The Tribune's special says that McClendon, who also wrote a letter defending Mr. Morley, is only about 24 years old. In his letter he says he made it his special business to see how our Government was officially represented abroad, and found it greatly misrepresented, and as a patriot he deemed it his duty to report the Secretary of State of the fact. Speaking of Mr. Morley, he calls him a Sumner man, who consistently said he owed his position to Sumner and not to Johnson, and endorsed Mr. Sumner's politics. Minister Dale, he says, takes every occasion to say that Congress is right and the President wrong. Mr. Murphy, Consul at Frankfort, he calls a blatant radical, and a tool of Zack Chandler's. He states that a majority of our Foreign Missions are held by Massachusetts puritans, and controlled by such men as Phillips, Butler and Chandler.

FROM THE WEST.

[From the Virginia Union.]

San Francisco, January 31.

The dinner at the Lick House, tendered to Senator Nye by numerous of his personal and political friends, passed off pleasantly. Ira P. Rankin presided, and speeches were made by the Chairman, John W. Dwinelle, George Barstow, Geo. C. Gorham, Judge C. Hartson, of Napa, Rev. Dr. Stebbins, Walter Van Dyke, General McDowell, Justice Lewis, of Nevada, General Steele, and the distinguished guest. Senaton Nye reiterated his well known sentiments on the great questions of the day, and at a late hour the pleasant party broke up with a concluding toast wishing a pleasant voyage, safe return and cordial good-bye to the "Grey Eagle of Liberty." Senator Nye departed for the scene of his labors on the steamer Constitution, yesterday.

The last will and testament of Captain Vantine has been filed in the Probate Court. He bequeaths Mary Ann Green, daughter of Sarah Green, the sum of $5,000; to Sarah Green, $2,000; to Catharine Boyd, $3,000; to his sister, Eliza Lash, $250; to his sister, Julie Mink, all the remainder of his property, of every description, for her support and use during her term of life, and at her death to be equally divided among her children.

Henry Voitelsh commenced suit in the Thirteenth District Court against Francis Curdis to recover the sum of $10,000 damages for slander.

Peter Olsen, Captain of the sloop Oliver Twist, fell overboard evening before last, while pushing out from Stewart street wharf, and was drowned before assistance could reach him. Deceased leaves a wife and three children in this city.

Victoria, (V. I.), January 26.

Her Majesty's ship Sparrow Hawk returned from Klaskino day before yesterday, bringing the Captain, five seamen and a Kanaka woman, lately belonging to the Hawaiian bark Muna Kea, which was wrecked on the west coast of the island two months ago. The report of ill treatment of the shipwrecked, by Indians, is without foundation.

Victoria, (V. I.), January 30.

The steamer Active, from San Francisco on the 26th, arrived here at 7 o'clock this morning. She experienced favorable weather all the way. Her Majesty's ship Shearwater, 11 guns, from Panama, also arrived this morning.

A PROSPECTOR'S ITEMS.—The Reese River Reveille gathers the following interesting items from Edward Gilman, who has just returned to Austin from an extended prospecting trip to the southeast. His party was absent three months, during which time its members encountered neither mishap nor sickness. Gilman passed through the districts of Hot Creek and Reveille, and then proceeded to Pahranagat. He judges there were about 200 men there, a considerable portion of whom were engaged in mining, and he thinks some good mining property is being developed. The party visited the Salt Mountain, situated sixty to seventy miles to the southeast of Pahranagat. The salt lies under several feet of soil, which is removed, and the solid deposit of beautiful salt is blasted in the same manner that ordinary rock is blasted, and is thrown out in huge blocks. Gilman brought in a number of fine large cubes of the salt. It is being worked slightly at present for the Pahranagat District, to which it is hauled over a practicable road. The party visited the old Potosi District, 60 miles west of Callville, and about 140 miles southeast of Death Valley. It is situated on the southeastern slope of Spring Mountain, along which runs the old San Bernardino road. The mines of the district were worked in 1859 and 1860 by a party of California miners, but as the deposits seemed to be chiefly lead, the work was abandoned. The Indians of the section procure their lead for bullets from the district. There is one large ledge called the Potosi, which is said to be fifteen feet thick, yielding ore rich in lead, which contains a fair proportion of silver. Spring Mountain is well timbered, and contains white and yellow pine, oak and manzanita. On the west side of the mountain is Ash Valley, where a band of Mohave-Piute Indians cultivate the soil extensively, and raise good crops of corn, beans, potatoes, squashes and melons. The valley takes its name from the small ash trees which grow in portions of it. Water is plentiful, and grasses of nutritious quality grow in the utmost luxuriance all over the valley. The party visited Callville, on the Colorado river, passing through several small Mormon settlements on the route. Gilman saw Breyfogle at Pahranagat—the man who has a mine of fabulous richness in his "mind's eye," and who every now and then, succeeds in fooling parties into fitting him out to go in search of it. But he never finds it; he always falls in with savages, who rob him, wound him, and drive him back. He is now suffering from a wound inflicted by Indians last December, while he was engaged in the search for his "lost mine."

GOOD NEWS.—The Reese River Reveille of February 1st, says:

We hear the best news from the mines of Silver Bend. Last evening Colonel Buel received a letter from his correspondent there, informing him of rich developments in the tunnel of the Combination Company, as well as in the excavations on the claim of Child & Canfield. The tunnel of the former company is run to cut the Highbridge at the depth of ninety feet from the surface. It has been pushed in to the extent of 158 feet, at which point the ledge has been struck. Colonel Buel's informant states that it is fourteen feet thick, and holds fine mineral. On the Child and Canfield location on the Transylvania, which is being opened by inclined shafts, a grand development has been made in the south incline, where a vein of handsome mineral, from three to five feet thick, has been fully exposed. A similar result had been obtained in the north incline, of which we have already made note. The north and south openings are 800 feet apart, and their developments determine fully the fact and character of the Transylvania ledge. The good news occasioned some excitement and very general joy in town.

THE Denver Gazette says a party of about twelve or fifteen men will leave Denver in a few days for some new gulch diggings which have been struck near the head of San Juan River, a tributary of the Colorado. The company will make for the San Juan Pass, in the southern portion of Conejos county, a distance of nearly 350 miles. The mountains back of this county are reported to be very rich in mineral, and the country extremely beautiful. There is little or no snow in these regions during the winter. The prospects found in the gulches of the San Juan would indicate extensive gold diggings in this section.

Sterling Price.

This wretched brigand has returned to St. Louis. He has been received with polite consideration by many citizens, and proposes to resume his political relations with the State of Missouri.

Amnesty and oblivion are commendable, but there are some offenders whose crimes have been so enormous that forgiveness is impossible. The earth is uneasy beneath their tread. The sunlight loathes their presence. Hell yawns for its predestined inhabitants.

Such a criminal is this devilish buccaneer who returns to confront the orphans and widows he has made, the sanctuaries he has desecrated, the hearths he has defiled, the communities he has outraged, the commonwealth he has devastated.

Among all the conspicuous felons developed by the rebellion, Sterling Price stands preeminent. With assiduous and studied malignity, he devoted himself to the ruin of Missouri and Kansas. Availing himself of an extended personal influence and complete familiarity with locations, he deliberately desolated with fire and sword the State which was his home, and which had honored him repeatedly with political preferment and power. A century will not obliterate the bloody traces of this miscreant, inflicted by the horde of ragged demons whom he collected in every quarter of the South West.

Other Confederate commanders have acquired renown by the direction of their genius to the accomplishment of some strictly military purpose. Lee defended the Capital; Jackson, Stewart, Early and their subordinates assailed the armies of the Republic; all fought to uphold the fortunes of the South, with mistaken bravery, and a valor that would have been commendable had it been displayed beneath the flag to which their allegiance was due.

No such verdict can be awarded to Sterling Price. He is a parricide, a murderer, a thief, an assassin, an incendiary, with no higher motive than the ignoble desire for private revenge. He stabbed his own State; he killed his neighbors and acquaintances; he burned and robbed the houses where he had been an inmate and a guest. His operations were no part of the military plan of the Confederate leaders. He was an independent freebooter. Neither courage, skill nor genius were displayed in his campaigns. Compared with those of Johnson, Hood, or Beauregard, they were like the felonies of the clerk who steals the funds when he has the key to the safe, or the son who puts torch to his father's house when the inmates are asleep.

The ruin he inflicted on Missouri, he intended also to impose upon Kansas. Future generations will feel the burdens which arose from the malign designs of this marauder with his associated cut-thoats in the raid of 1864. The horrors of that dreadful October will live in the memory of thousands, long after their author has been consigned to an execrated grave.

That such a malefactor should be allowed to live, is a disgrace to justice. He has forfeited the protection of law, and ought to be shot on sight like a wolf, a mad dog, or a hyena. His crimes are written in blood and ashes on a thousand fields and hillsides of the region he ravaged. The bones of his numberless victims moulder in shallow trenches from the Rio Grande to the Kaw, and if some survivor does not arise to avenge the wrongs of friend or kin, it will be an exception in the great drama of crime and retribution.—Atchison Champion.

The Charleston Mercury gives a few particulars of the fearful tragedy which took place at Kingston, S. C., on the 7th ult. It is supposed that the jail was fired by the negro prisoners confined within its walls for the purpose of making their escape, but their effort only worked out their entire destruction. The flames from the burning building made Kingston nearly as light as day, and the thick clouds of smoke were visible for many miles around. The fire had gained so much headway before it was discovered that its progress could not be arrested. One white man only was in the jail at the time, and he escaped; but twenty-two of the negro prisoners perished in the flames. Their shrieks and screams as they were gradually shut off from all hope of escape, were sickening to the helpless spectators. In a very short time the cries and groans ceased, and of the twenty-two negroes nothing was left but a charred, blackened and shapeless mass.

THE passage by Congress of a bill regulating the suffrage in the various Territories under the control of the National Government is a paper complement to the act which established universal suffrage in the District of Columbia. The President will probably refuse his sanction to this measure, as he did to the previous one, but like that it will become a law in spite of his opposition. Henceforth in all our National domain over which Congress exercises a direct jurisdiction there will be no distinction between men by reason of their color. All will possess the same civil and the same political rights. The extension of this condition of things to the South and the eradication of the obnoxious word "white" from those of our Northern State constitutions, which still retain it, are all that is necessary to carry into practice all over the Union, President Johnson's just principle that all men, whatever their color, shall have a fair and equal start in the race of life.—Hartford Courant.

A Paris correspondent writes: Speaking of the Grand Hotel in Paris, it is said that Mr. Gerrit (or is it Mr. Lloyd Garrison?) has taken, through an agent, for the first four months of the Exhibition, a suit of rooms on the first floor of the hotel, for which he has been made to pay a mine of money. The Count de Flanders, brother of the King of Belgium, and President of the Belgian Commission to the Exhibition, has also taken a suit of rooms on the first floor of the Grand Hotel, and for which he has been made to pay a fabulous sum. The rich representative of Egypt at the Exhibition, or rather the representative of the rich Viceroy of Egypt, has also secured rooms on the first floor of this hotel. The English Commission to the Exhibition, of which the Prince of Wales is President, have secured the greatest part of a new and scarcely finished house on the Avenue of the Champs Elysees, No. 71.

PERSONAL.—The Omaha Republican, of the 22d ult., says:

H. G. Worthington, Esq., a leading lawyer of Washington City, and formerly a member of Congress from Nevada, is stopping in Omaha on a visit, and has rooms at the Herndon House. Mr. W. is visiting us with some reference to becoming a permanent resident of our Territory. We sincerely hope he will find it to his advantage to do so. Gentlemen of his ability and worth will be gladly welcomed among us as valuable acquisitions.

Harry has numerous friends in this part of the country, who are pleased to hear of his whereabouts and to read such a favorable notice of him. He is worthy of it.

THE Atchison Free Press says twenty-six wagons, each drawn by six mules, crossed the river at that place Monday, January 21st, having left the Fort on Sunday, bound for Savannah, Mo., where they are to take up Colonel Gibson's full battery of artillery, and transport it entire, soldiers, field pieces, and caissons, to Omaha, whither it has recently been ordered for frontier service. The Battery will leave St. Louis by cars on Wednesday, and at Savannah, having reached the limit of railroad conveyance, will be transferred to the mule train which will there be in waiting.

The "Col." had been on ... for some time, and was putting and ...everything that came within his reach, ...was finally arrested and lodged in the ...use, from whence he was taken and ... a room adjoining.—Leavenworth ...

From Fort Bridger.—Orrin Robinson says Thomas Cheyenne, living on Cottonwood ... an escape to return home on Friday, January 4th, during a violent snow storm, and losing his way, was found the Sunday following frozen to death. From the appearance of the ... first settlers in Cache county; a worthy and esteemed citizen; aged about sixty years. He leaves a large family to mourn his loss.

Killing of Three Men in Texas.—A correspondent, at Greenville, Hunt county, Texas, informs us that on Christmas day three men were killed at Black Jack Grove, sixteen miles east of that place. The parties fell out about a title to land. The names of the persons killed were Nelson Brumly, Wm. Fry, and Robert Neusom. They were all desperate and dissipated men.—Louisville Journal.

A Chinese widow, framing the tomb of her husband, and being asked the cause of so singular a mode of showing her grief, accounted for it by saying that he had made her promise not to marry again while the mortar of his tomb remained damp, and as it dried very slowly, she saw no harm in aiding the operation.

Female Lobbyists.—The usual number of women are crowding the ante-rooms of the Senate and the House, says the Washington Republican, and importuning members for favors. They are not after pardons, but something more substantial. We understand that some of the largest schemes before Congress are represented by ladies of great beauty and intelligence.

We have the authority, says Wilkes' Spirit, to state that in the next number of our paper there will appear an offer from Leonard Jerome to run Kentucky against any horse in the world. We believe the distance of the race will be anything from a two-mile dash to four-mile heats.

Who Got the Opera House.—The St. Louis Democrat, of the 22d ult., says that ticket No. 58,600 was held by A. H. Lee, of the village of Prairie du Rocher, a village thirty or forty miles below St. Louis, on the Illinois side of the river. The ticket was bought of Pettes & Leathe agents, at St. Louis.

The Junction City Union says two hundred and fifty recruits for the 2d Cavalry, from Carlisle Barracks, Pa., had arrived at Fort Riley. The 2d are now serving against the Indians in the Department of the Platte. They will be forwarded to the regiment immediately.

The St. Jo Herald has the report that a rumor is credited in Omaha to the effect that a powder train on the Plains was blown up a few days ago. The train is said to be Gilman's, which was carrying powder to the mountain military posts for the Government.

"Tell me, ye angelic hosts, ye messengers of love, shall swindled printers here below have no redress above?" The shining angel band replied, "To us is knowledge given; delinquents on the printers' books can never enter heaven!"

D. K. Jackman of Philadelphia and Milton Cartwright of Erie, Pennsylvania, have purchased 3,000 acres of the richest cotton lands in South Carolina, and intend putting it at once under cultivation. The price paid was $12 per acre.

Snow Storm.—We were visited last evening by the severest snow storm of the season, which, as we go to press, is still increasing. It is accompanied by a strong wind from the north. Sleighing stock will no doubt be on the rise to-day.

The St. Joe Herald says the Indians are moving southward from the region of Fort Berthold, and give signs of ugly intentions. The severe weather had dampened their ardor.

In Washington county, Tennessee, twenty miles northeast of Jonesboro, is an ancient birch tree, on the bark of which is still legible the following inscription: "1771—D. Boon killed a bar."

Progress in various directions made in every branch of science during the beginning of this century have been great and sure. For the course of years the material development of the country has gone favorably on. Manufactures, agriculture and commerce have alike been fostered and stimulated. Railways have at once employed labor and assisted industry. Canals have fertilized a wide extent of territory and remuneratively dispersed over the whole country and conveyed to foreign depots the products of the various districts. This year Egypt has produced a cotton crop estimated at twenty millions sterling, and it is credibly told that the condition of the common people has begun to be sensibly improved.—Atchison Champion.

COAL DISCOVERY.—Some persons discovered, says the Junction Union, near Ellsworth, on the line of the Railroad, a seal rein cropping out of the bluff, which on examination, proved to be No. 1 coal, and rather a field than a lode, eight feet in depth and extending back indefinitely. Two leads were taken out and used, and pronounced first-rate. A company was immediately formed under the State law for mining, and stock taken to the amount of $80,000, the proper officers elected, and steps taken to commence operations immediately.

SINGULAR COINCIDENCE.—Mr. Leonard Grover, formerly manager of Grover's Theatre in Washington, and now of the Olympic Theatre, New York, while looking over a mass of old papers recently, came upon a letter from J. Wilkes Booth, soliciting an engagement; and, on opening it, was startled to find, slipped within it, a note from President Lincoln, accepting the proffered courtesy of a box for some evening's performance, and saying that, if possible, the box would be occupied by "Tad" and himself.

A western man who, some weeks since, contracted at Pittsburg for 8,000 barrels of refined oil for speculation, on Monday paid the refiner from whom he had purchased $15,000 to release him from the contract. That was a pretty rough speculation.

It is said that John Neal, of Portland, Maine, who contributed to Blackwood forty years ago, still devotes his attention to law practice and literary pursuits; and at the ripe age of seventy-four is as hale and hearty as most men of fifty.

A Louisville paper gives an elaborate account of the great flour mills of that city, which are manufacturing upwards of 2,000 barrels of flour per day, consuming some 3,000,000 bushels of wheat per annum.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.—Over in Nevada, since the Senatorial election, parties with cadaverous phizes and of dolorous aspect are characterised as "de long faces," while the rubicund and jolly are styled "Nye-tro-gler-serenes."

The receipts of the Philadelphia Post Office will hereafter be largely increased, as the front entrance of that building has been rented for a newspaper and peanut stand.

The Detroit Free Press estimates the total yield of grain, of all kinds, in Michigan, during the current year, at 23,866,638 bushels, against 24,458,531 bushels in 1865.

Secretary Stanton has presented the colored Episcopalians of Washington with brick to build a church. The value of the gift is over $10,000.

The Leland brothers have leased the Delvan House at Albany for ten years, at a rent of $52,000 a year.
